

FOR IMMEDIATE RELEASE

Brooklyn's Huntronik self-titled debut contains 9 electronic wonders that breathe krautrock and indie jams

The album is streaming on bandcamp where it can also be downloaded gratis

'Huntronik' is an experimental album but one furnished with exceptional tuneage

Official Site | Bandcamp
Facebook | Twitter

Brooklyn 3-piece Huntronik appeared from nowhere in early 2013 with a fully-fledged debut that tinkers with a myriad of genres to make a significant footprint of its own. Led by Bostonian Greg Hunt Huntronik are undeniably experimental in nature but theirs is a sound that is grounded in simple yet memorable melodies.

Huntronik start with the kernel of an idea but the creative input of every member of the band means the finished product can end up being completely different. In many ways you can tell this from listening to the songs which are schizophrenic in nature, each beginning provides no guarantee that this is how it will end up. Take a listen to the 2 promo tracks 'Baldy' and 'We Can Build You' for a quick insight into the world of Huntronik.

'Huntronik' has already picked up lots of praise from the likes of Lip Mag "...listening to Huntronik so much recently has made me remember that great music exists inside music of every genre..." and Echoes and Dust "...fairly serious presentation of social critique without being too po-faced and marrying it with a sound which is occasionally frivolous and exhilarating..."

'Huntronik' is available to listen/download for free (no email address required) from Huntronik's bandcamp but give me a shout at me@huggerpr.com if you'd like an individual track sent on. Greg from Huntronik is available for interviews (email, phone, skype) and bookings so please use the same email address to make arrangements.